

The debt crisis – when worlds collide

Each year the developing nations pay three times as much in loan and interest repayments as they receive in aid. The net effect is that the poor countries are transferring funds to the rich countries

