

European car sales forecasts

As falling demand for new cars reflects recession in Europe, Britain's car industry is increasingly hopeful that new registrations will rise in 1993. The first country to go into recession three years ago, the UK is now the first to emerge and growing confidence is filtering through to car buyers

