

Volcano adds to misery

The Cerro Negro volcano, spewing lava, gas and ash, has compounded the misery in Nicaragua as the death toll from Hurricane Mitch heads towards 9,000 – making it one of the deadliest Atlantic storms on record. Hundreds of thousands of homes in Central America have been swept away in a week of floods and up to 13,000 people remain missing

Honduras: 7,000 dead

