

Planets gather in evening sky

The five brightest planets visible from Earth have formed a spectacular celestial array – visible to the naked eye – that won't be seen again until 2040. Through the next four weeks, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, Saturn and Venus will appear tightly clustered in the Western sky

