

Iraq weapons row heats up

The failure to find Iraq's weapons of mass destruction has cast doubt on the quality of intelligence prior to the war and on the credibility of U.S. and British politicians. The only evidence found so far are two mobile laboratories which may have been used to create bio-weapons

