

Niger food crisis

More than three million people face starvation in the West African nation of Niger. The country of 11.7m people – one of the poorest in the world – was devastated by locust swarms in 2004 and then hit by drought which decimated its grain harvest this year

