Iraq war makes terror "more likely" A new global poll finds that six in 10 people believe the war in Iraq has increased the likelihood of terrorist attacks worldwide. The survey of 41,856 people in 35 countries was conducted for the BBC World Service by GlobeScan and the U.S. Program on International Policy Attitudes Increased threat of terrorism (%) No effect Decreased Average 15 12 Canada 5 U.S. 21 21 76 Argentina 11 3 Brazil 15 Chile 23 16 10 Mexico 59 12 Finland 11 4 Italy 15 1 Germany 4 Spain 4 UK 3 Poland 12 France 3 Russia 58 26 5 1 Egypt 83 6 Iran 12 12 Iraa Turkev 64 14 6 Saudi Arabia 2 Senegal 17 Tanzania 37 Zimbabwe 44 8 16 Congo 44 21 16 South Africa 42 10 18 Ghana 30 Kenya 10 34 Nigeria 49 China South Korea Australia 4 Indonesia Philippines 8 India 19 44 18 Afghanistan 20 29 Sri Lanka 10 Poll conducted Oct 2005-Jan 2006. Margin of error ranged from 2.5%-4%

© GRAPHIC NEWS

Source: BBC World Service/GlobeScan/PIPA