

Greenhouse gas rise

Atmospheric carbon dioxide levels jumped 2.6 parts per million in 2005, pushing it to a new record level, according to data from the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Carbon dioxide is a principal “greenhouse gas” thought to be driving global warming

Global atmospheric CO₂ concentration
Parts per million (ppm)

Source: NOAA

© GRAPHIC NEWS