

America's vital voters

Intermittent voters, Americans who are registered to vote but do not always make it to the polls, account for about one in five of U.S. voters. Their ballots will be crucial in the forthcoming mid-term elections

Pew Research Center poll of 1,804 adults, Sep 21-Oct 4. Margin of error: $\pm 3\%$ © GRAPHIC NEWS