

Nuclear arms race brewing in Middle East

The Gulf Co-operation Council – Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and the United Arab Emirates – are to consider starting a joint nuclear programme for “peaceful purposes”, amid concerns over Iran’s nuclear ambitions and Arab suspicion over Israel’s nuclear capability

