

Health threat from rising obesity

At least 400 million adults worldwide are obese and that number will rise to over 700 million by 2015, according to the World Health Organization.

Obesity-related medical problems – type 2 diabetes, heart disease and strokes – are second only to smoking as a cause of preventable death

