

London hub for high-speed rail

London's newly-restored St Pancras station provides a hub for Britain's new high speed rail services, starting with the Eurostar to Paris, Brussels and beyond, extended to include domestic routes in 2009 and the London 2012 Olympic Javelin shuttle to Stratford in 2010

HIGH SPEED 1 LINE

St Pancras International:

£800 million restoration with 15 platforms – nine for high speed routes, six of them international – and extensive retail space including longest champagne bar in Europe

Source: Eurostar

Picture: Getty Images

© GRAPHIC NEWS