

Taliban opium profits likely to soar

Opium cultivation in rebel-controlled areas of southern and southwestern Afghanistan is expected to grow this year according to an annual UN report, although the country's overall cultivation area is expected to be similar to or slightly lower than last year's record breaking figure

