

African warriors to run London Marathon for water

Among the 30,000 participants in this year's London Marathon are six Maasai tribesmen from northern Tanzania, who are running to raise money towards finding a vital water source for their village

