

France to transform African relations

President Nicolas Sarkozy has announced France is to renegotiate its defence agreements with former colonies in Africa. France has maintained bases in several countries since their independence and has accords ranging from military intervention to training and arm sales

