

Centenary of first cross-Channel flight

On July 25, 1909, French aviator Louis Blériot became the first man to fly an airplane across the English Channel.

The historic 37-minute flight – which won him a prize of £1,000, offered by the London Daily Mail – alerted the world to the potential of air travel

BLÉRIOT TYPE XI MONOPLANE

