

Fire crews scramble to tame Greek wildfires

Greek firefighters are racing against time to contain wildfires threatening areas north of Athens. The blazes have so far razed about 37,000 acres of forest and brushland, burned dozens of homes and forced thousands to flee their homes

Agios Stefanos:

Almost all of 10,000 inhabitants flee on Sunday

Grammatikos: Blaze begins Friday, spreads southeast

Marathon: Historic town encircled by fires

Mount Pendeli

Over 2,000 firefighters, soldiers and volunteers fighting blazes on ground. Aircraft from Italy, France and Cyprus to join efforts
