

One quarter of the world practices Islam

Almost a quarter of the world's 6.8 billion population is Muslim, according to a new global survey. Only 20 percent of these live in the Middle Eastern heartland, while the largest communities are in Asia, and one in five Muslims lives in a country where Islam is a minority

