

NASA tests new moon rocket

The Ares I-X, a dummy version of the vehicle NASA plans to use to take astronauts into orbit following the retirement of the Space Shuttle next year, is to make a $455m unmanned test flight in preparation for possible crewed flights as early as 2015

