

Rare iceberg heading north

A large iceberg has been spotted about halfway between Antarctica and Australia, a rare sight in waters so far north. It is believed to be part of a larger iceberg which broke away from Antarctica several years ago

