

UN mission in D.R. Congo “a failure”

The world's biggest peacekeeping mission has worsened the situation in eastern Congo, according to a leaked UN report, allowing rebels to plunder the rich mineral resources of the region with impunity and failing to protect thousands of civilians

General Bosco Ntaganda

Former Tutsi rebel tasked with leading army operations in Kivu. Has set up parallel taxation system, reaping $250,000 per month, and is accused of war crimes

Mineral resources

- Gold
- ◆ Diamonds
- Copper / cobalt
- Tin

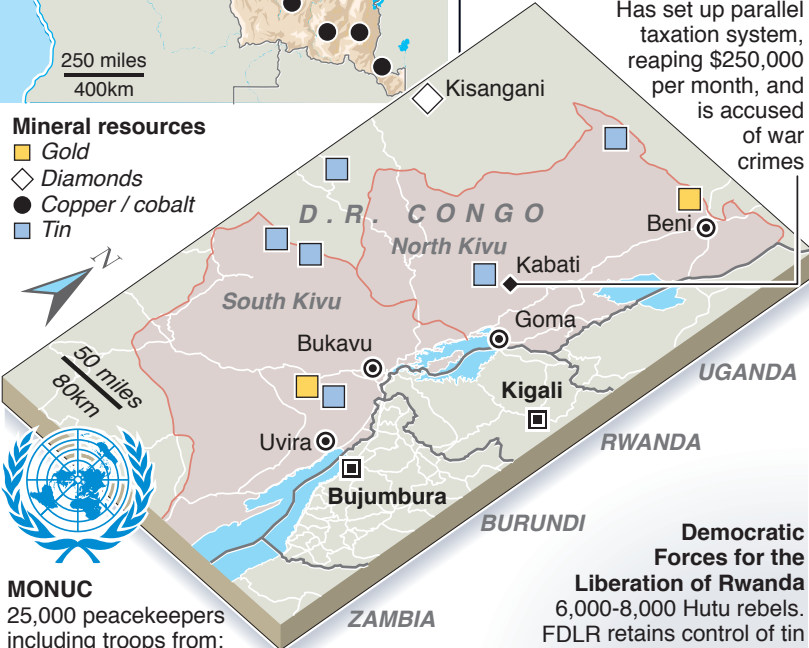

50 miles
80km

MONUC

25,000 peacekeepers including troops from:

India: 4,372	South Africa: 1,056
Pakistan: 3,551	Nepal: 1,030
Bangladesh: 1,330	Morocco: 809
Uruguay: 1,324

Democratic Forces for the Liberation of Rwanda

6,000-8,000 Hutu rebels. FDLR retains control of tin deposits in eastern Congo despite recent surrender of 1,200 fighters