

U.S. orders extra checks on specific fliers

The U.S. Transportation Security Administration has announced that all passengers flying into the United States from or via a total of 14 countries will be subject to enhanced screening techniques, such as body scans, pat-downs and a thorough search of carry-on luggage

