

Angola's troubled province of Cabinda

Cabinda is home to a guerrilla force FLEC (Front for the Liberation of the Enclave of Cabinda) that has been fighting for independence for three decades. Cabinda's vast offshore oilfields produce 60% of Angola's oil, which accounts for 90% of the nation's income from exports

