

Chile steps up quake rescue efforts

Chile's government is scrambling to provide aid to thousands of homeless in towns devastated by Saturday's massive earthquake and tsunamis, while 10,000 troops have moved into stricken areas to quell looting. The 8.8 magnitude quake is known to have killed more than 700 people

