

Cisco prepares for next generation internet

Cisco Systems has unveiled a new super-fast internet router that promises to move mountains of data at astounding speeds. The Cisco CRS-3 – which operates at 322 terabits* per second – would enable every motion picture ever created to be streamed in less than four minutes

