

Mexico drug wars claim U.S. consulate lives

Hit men allied to the drug cartel in Ciudad Juarez are suspected to be behind attacks on two cars carrying families with ties to the U.S. consulate, amid a surge in violence along Mexico's border with Texas

U.S. State Dept has warned staff to send families out of six cities and advised against travel in states of Durango, Coahuila and Chihuahua

