

Air passengers face more disruption

Volcanic ash clouds from eruptions in Iceland could continue at a comparable level for days or even weeks. So far these have forced airlines to cancel an estimated 4,000 flights across northern Europe

UK: Airspace closed until 18:00GMT on Friday

Predicted extent of ash plume
Friday, 13:00GMT

Wednesday: Volcano beneath Iceland's Eyjafjallajökull glacier erupts, hurling plume of ash up to 11,000 metres into atmosphere
