

Closest General Election in a generation

With opinion polls suggesting a hung parliament, Britain's knife-edge General Election is increasingly focused on voters in a few dozen marginal seats. Four out of 10 swing voters have yet to decide which party to vote for while one in 10 voters could have a change of mind at the polling booth

