

South Africa's World Cup security plan

With the government worried about crime and political protests as well as terrorist plots, South Africa is mounting a $174m security plan which includes air sweeps by fighter jets, joint border patrols, and the deployment of 44,000 police officers

