

Total solar eclipse over southern Pacific

A total eclipse of the sun will be visible across much of the southern Pacific Ocean, including several island groups and the tip of South America, on July 11. It will be the last total solar eclipse for 29 months

Eclipse occurs when moon obscures all or part of sun

