

Brazil's Rousseff looks set for presidency

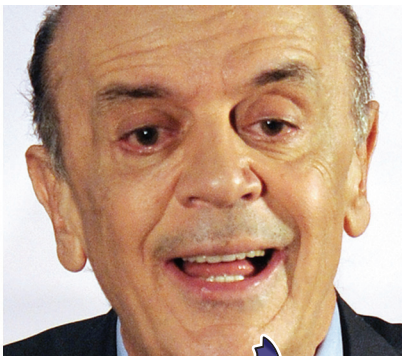

Support for Brazil's ruling party presidential candidate Dilma Rousseff is holding, according to the latest election poll, putting her on course for a first round victory over opposition hopeful Jose Serra

Dilma Rousseff, 62,
Workers' Party.
Former chief of staff to outgoing president Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva

Frontrunner still popular despite ethics scandal involving one of her former top aides. Has vowed to continue Lula's stable economic policies that have boosted Brazil's growth

Jose Serra, 68,
Brazilian Social Democracy Party.
Former minister and governor of Sao Paulo state

Despite attempts to exploit corruption allegations against his rival, Serra's campaign has been largely ineffective at overturning Rousseff's big lead due to Lula's huge popularity
