UN reveals extent of Nigeria's oil pollution Contamination from a half-century of oil operations in Nigeria's Ogoniland region could take 30 years and $1 billion to rectify. NIGERIA according to a UN report. The study comes a day after Anglo-Dutch oil giant Shell Abuja admitted liability for two massive oil spills that affected tens of thousands of people Lagos in the Bodo area in 2008 and 2009 River Niger 50km 30 miles Port Warri Harcourt CAMEROON Biaht of Ogoniland Benin Bodo OIL SPILL Biaht of NIGER COMPARISON DELTA Bonny Ogoniland oil spills EQUATORIAL 2008 / 2009 GUINEA 13m barrels (maximum) 9m barrels (minimum) Oil fields Oil pipelines Gulf of Mexico oil spill 2010 4.9m barrels Refineries Sources: Energy Information Administration, wire agencies © GRAPHIC NEWS