

Libyan oil output ahead of schedule

Libyan crude oil output is already over 500,000 barrels per day – almost a third of its pre-war levels – according to the interim oil minister. Although foreign firms are concerned about the uncertain security situation, officials expect to resume full production by the end of 2012

