

Afghan forces to take over security in more areas

Afghan President Hamid Karzai has announced that the nation's forces will soon take charge of security in areas of the country that are home to half of Afghanistan's population – the second step in a transition that will end NATO-led combat missions by the end of 2014

