

RIM's share price slide continues unabated

Research In Motion has posted a sharp drop in profits and offers a bleak sales forecast for the Christmas period. It is also delaying its make-or-break new QNX operating system phones until the end of 2012 and has a large inventory of unsuccessful and unsold PlayBook tablets

Co-chief executives Mike Lazaridis (left) and Jim Balsillie (right) have taken immediate pay cuts to $1 per year in bid to appease shareholders
