

Today in History

June 21, 1982

▲ Prince William, first child of Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Diana, was born. He turns 30 today and is second in line to the British throne

1905: Jean Paul-Sartre, French existentialist philosopher, novelist and playwright, was born

1948: Columbia Records introduced Vinylite plastic long-playing records

2003: Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix, J.K. Rowling's fifth book, went on sale worldwide

2007: Lebanon declared victory following a 33-day war against Al Qaeda-inspired militants at the Nahr al-Bared Palestinian refugee camp