

Today in History

September 10, 1962

▲ Australia's Rod Laver became only the second male tennis player after Don Budge in 1938 to win all four Grand Slam singles titles in the same year

1914: Robert Wise, U.S. film director famous for such films as "The Sound of Music" and "West Side Story" was born

1995: NATO deployed the first cruise missiles in Europe to break the siege of Sarajevo by Bosnian Serbs

2002: Switzerland joined the United Nations, breaking its traditional policy of neutrality

2009: The Dubai Metro, the first mass transit system on the Arabian Peninsula, was officially opened