

Great Barrier Reef coral coverage declines

Australia's Great Barrier Reef has lost more than half of its coral cover in less than three decades, according to scientists – a result of storm damage, poisonous starfish and bleaching linked to climate change

