

Premier Wen's family fortunes

The family of China's Prime Minister, Wen Jiabao has become extremely wealthy during his term in office, according to a New York Times investigation of corporate and regulatory records from 1992* to 2012

Wen Jiabao:

New York Times investigation found no evidence that Premier Wen used his political influence to enrich his family

$120 million

Yang Zhiyun:

Prime minister's mother has $120 million stake in Ping An Insurance – China's biggest financial services company

$1 billion

Zhang Beili:

PM's wife – known as China's Diamond Queen – controls nation's jewellery trade, has billion-dollar portfolio of investments in insurance, technology and real estate

$200 million

Wen Jiahong:
Younger brother's business assets

$110 million

Wen Jiahong's wife: Stake in Ping An Insurance

$416 million

Wen Yunsong: PM's son established New Horizon Capital – one of China's biggest private equity firms. His wife and her parents hold $416 million stake in Ping An Insurance

Wen Ruchun: PM's daughter has stake in jewellery empire

*Wen Jiabao becomes Secretary of Central Committee of Communist Party