

Today in History

August 10, 2000

▲ An investigation concluded that a piece of metal on the runway at Charles de Gaulle airport was the most likely cause of the Concorde crash that killed 113 people

1787: Mozart completed his popular Eine Kleine Nachtmusik

1913: The Treaty of Bucharest was signed between Bulgaria and the Balkan allies, ending the Second Balkan War

2008: Bolivian president Evo Morales won a recall vote following a power struggle with regional governors

2009: The WWF revealed that over 350 new species had been found in the Eastern Himalayas in 10 years