

Today in History

September 10, 2003

▲ Swedish Foreign Minister Anna Lindh was fatally stabbed at a Stockholm department store. The popular politician had been tipped as a likely future Prime Minister

1823: Simon Bolivar became president of Peru

1981: Picasso's Spanish Civil War painting Guernica was transferred to Madrid after 42 years in New York. Picasso vowed it would not enter Spain until democracy was restored

1998: Free Willy movie star Keiko was released back into Icelandic waters

1998: Stocks in Brazil fell 15 percent amid fears of devaluation as turmoil on the world markets continued