

Egyptian police storm Cairo protest camps

Egyptian security forces have moved in to clear two protest camps in Cairo occupied by supporters of deposed president Mohammed Morsi, with reports of many people killed

Smaller of two camps cleared, according to authorities. Protesters taking refuge in botanical gardens and zoo, and inside sprawling campus of Cairo University

Main protest camp with thousands of protesters. Security forces closing in on mosque thought to house several leaders of Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood movement