

Russia battles to contain record flooding

More than 20,000 people have been evacuated from flood-affected areas in Russia's Far East, where the Amur river has reached the highest level on record following heavy rains

