

CIA expanding training for Syrian rebels

The CIA is ramping up a covert programme to train opposition fighters in Syria amid concern that moderate forces are rapidly losing ground. But the mission is expected to produce only a few trained fighters each month, doing little to bolster rebel forces eclipsed by radical Islamists

