

G20 nations funding fossil fuel exploration

The G20 group of leading economies spend about $88 billion each year on fossil fuel exploration, increasing the risk of “dangerous climate change”, according to a report by the Overseas Development Institute

Data includes all G20 members except European Union. All figures approximate

Sources: ODI and Oil Change International, Rystad Energy

© GRAPHIC NEWS