

Threat of terror from European jihadists

Many U.S. and European intelligence officials fear that a wave of terror attacks will sweep through Europe, driven by the large number of foreign fighters travelling to Syria to participate in jihadist conflict

FOREIGN FIGHTERS OF EUROPEAN ORIGIN WHO HAVE TRAVELLED TO SYRIA

Numbers based on official figures and estimates.
Includes those who have returned or died

FACTORS REDUCING THREAT FROM FOREIGN FIGHTERS

Many die in suicide attacks or conflict with opposing forces

Many never return home, but continue fighting in conflict zone or next battle for jihad

Many become disillusioned. Some return to their home country without engaging in further violence

Others arrested or disrupted by intelligence services
