

Global emergency declared over Zika virus

The World Health Organization has declared the mosquito-borne Zika virus an international public health emergency due to its suspected link to thousands of birth defects in Brazil

