

Germany train crash

Two passenger trains collided head-on in the southern German state of Bavaria, killing at least four people. About 150 others were injured, including ten seriously

