

Best-paid chief executives

Advertising magnate Sir Martin Sorrell will see his pay rise by £23 million to £66m ($94.8m), making him Britain's best-paid chief executive

The WPP chief will receive 3.55 million shares worth £55.6m, a £3.6m short-term incentive reward, dividend equivalent payments of £5.6m, plus pension contributions on top of his £1.15m basic salary

	Executive	Company	Pay*	Year
1.	David Zaslav	Discovery Communications	$156.1m	2014
2.	Bart Becht	Reckitt Benckiser	$132m	2009†
3.	Omid Kordestani	Google	$129.9m	2014
4.	Michael Fries	Liberty Global	$112.2m	2014
5.	Eric Schmidt	Alphabet	$108.7m	2014
6.	Sir Martin Sorrell	WPP Worldwide	$94.8m	2015
7.	Mario Gabelli	Gamco Investors	$88.5m	2014
8.	Stephen Schwarzman	Blackstone Group	$85.9m	2014
9.	Tony James	Blackstone Group	$78.3m	2014
10.	Nick Woodman	GoPro Inc.	$77.4m	2014

*Salary, bonuses and stock awards received during financial year

†Becht retired from Reckitt Benckiser in 2011