

Today in History

July 23, 2011

▲ Amy Winehouse, British singer-songwriter best known for her multi-award winning album Back to Black, died from alcohol poisoning at the age of 27

1937: Prolactin, the hormone that promotes milk production in response to suckling, was isolated from the pituitary gland

1974: The regime of the Colonels ended in Greece after seven years

2004: A replica of Mostar's destroyed Ottoman bridge was opened in Bosnia

2015: The discovery of Kepler-452b, the first potentially rocky exoplanet found in the habitable zone of a sun-like star, was announced